1. It's a [positive adj.] day to [do] / for (something)

- Usage: Describing a fun activity to do, often due to weather.
- Grammar: "It's" can be changed to "This is". Common adj. are perfect, good, fine, nice, great, etc.
- Example A: This is a perfect day for a beer in the park.
- Example B: It's a nice day to exercise outside.
- Variations: A day like this calls for (something)

2. (someone) ended up [doing]

Usage: Explaining what a person did instead of doing what they originally planned.
Grammar: Often preceded by (someone) "wanted to, "was going to", "was planning on" etc.
Example A: We both wanted to go hiking, but we ended up staying in and watching movies.
Example B: I was planning on finishing my report tonight, but I ended up only getting half of it done.
Variations: i) (someone) [did] in the end ii) (someone) wound up [doing]

3. (someone) has been [doing/something] for most/all of (something/duration)

- Usage: Describing how long someone has been doing something, often a job or hobby.
- Grammar: Nouns are commonly used for jobs (e.g. an artist) or verbs for activities (e.g. been painting). The duration of time can be long or short.
- Example A: He has been an engineer and technology enthusiast all of his life.
- Example B: She has been doodling in her notebook for most of the class.
- Variations: (someone) has spent (duration) [doing]

4. (someone) bet (someone) (a price/something) that [something will happen].

- Usage: Predicting what will or won't happen in the future and showing confidence in your belief. Large amounts of money or valuables can be used to show further confidence.
- Grammar: The 'price' is commonly omitted entirely (e.g. "I bet you that ...")
- Example A: My friend bet me lunch that he'd get a better score on the test than me. He owes me lunch.
- Example B: I bet my brother £20 that Frank was going to forget about the party on Friday.
- Variations: i) (someone) said [something will happen] or (I would) [do/give something].

Story using the four patterns from this lesson

Apparently, it was going to be nice and sunny today, a perfect day to be outside and maybe read a book. It always rains on my days off though. I bet my wife $1000 that it would rain, and it did rain. I'm glad we were just joking, because I would need to really give her a $1000. Anyway, I wanted to read a book in the park, but I ended up reading at home. It doesn't really matter where I read, because I have been reading in my free time most of my life. I could read anywhere.
