1. Regular class:

This month I taught a new lesson on the theme of birds, insects and drawing. I did different activities like songs, pictures and videos on those themes. I hope the children made an image of those animals in their mind if they have never seen them in real life. I feel satisfied to see kids jotting down their creative arts by spreading beautiful colors. We learned a few new rhymes too. I revised all the lessons. I believe children were enjoyed their time at the community center.

2. Evaluation test:

I have young kids and I divided them into different groups. For the beginners, I keep all their records and collect the best works and stick them together individually. I made a cover page and put their grades for the works and get them ready to handover to their parents. For the older kids, I made different categories based on their activities in the class; rhymes in three languages, reading, writing, drawing, coloring, handwriting, cleanliness, manners, punctuality and friendliness. In this way, I created different observation sheet and took out the evaluation results based on their activities. It took me almost a week. In the end, I choose the best works and categorized them into 1st, 2nd and 3rd position holders. We presented them a small gift for the reinforcement. I believe that all the parents were happy to see their kid's work and progress.

3. Workshops on child psychology and child development for parents

After the result day, we gathered with parents as we have agreed to meet once every two months. This time, I conducted a presentation on child development and its different stages (infant to 18 years). I explained child development psychology and the corresponding needs. In the end, I taught them how to do good parenting. For this, I made a PowerPoint presentation for more interesting learning. Unfortunately, it was sad that the lights turned off and I couldn't do it with the prepared PowerPoint. Hopefully, the parents were very happy to attend this 2 hours workshop and learned the different characteristics of their children. In the end, I saw that everyone has a happy smile on their face. I believe they will apply practically in the upcoming days.

4. International teacher's day preparation

We have international teachers' day next month and we guide our children on how to organize the programs. We lead them to manage the budgets and preparation programs. We shared our ideas on celebrating the teacher's day. We also gave responsibilities to the bigger kids on how to manage the time and programs.
