

Semikolon Manifesto

"Times change. And so do we. The world is full of decisions and crucial moments. We believe that every day can be an end and a beginning.

Use this opportunity to innovate and improve!

Do this every day and in each of those 86,400 seconds. We are committed to being different: to seeing things differently, developing them differently and thinking differently.

Not out of defiance, but on principle, and using a professional method.

We are convinced that companies, organisations and individuals can consciously shape their own future. Independently, masterfully, and differently. We know that experience is good and justified, but it is not an infinitely valid panacea from yesterday for answering the challenges of today and tomorrow. We consistently think in terms of tomorrow and act today – full of respect for yesterday.

Set the course for your own future now! Through change, we discover perspectives: to think in new ways and to act in new ways. Brave and yet level-headed.

Considered, but with a clear will to implement.

Imagine you can be anything – above all, different."