How To Play Use the mouse to click on the countless monsters on the screen, try to kill them as many as possible. The journey in clicker games often starts with humble beginnings. You repeatedly click to produce a resource or earn currency until you have enough money to purchase the first upgrade. From there, you continue adding upgrades to your production to increase the output and revenue. Some clicker games are more of a grind than others, and many give you an idle bonus for leaving the game and coming back. A very grindy but satisfying clicker game is Babel Tower, a game whereby you build the famous tower of Babel brick-by-brick to reach intriguing new heights.

Another grindy clicker game back on the web after the demise of Flash is Clicker Heroes. Check it out and relive the grind! Clicking Becomes Idling Once you reach a certain point in many clicker games, clicking becomes unnecessary. This is when a clicker game becomes an idle game. Eventually, you end up living the dream of having a fully automated workflow that earns you big bags of cash. If you want to turbo-charge that dream and make it happen in a few hours rather than a lifetime, check out these idle-clicker titles: I want to Be a Billionaire 2 Planet Clicker 2 Merge Pickaxe Similar Genres Whatever kind of clicker game you're looking for, you can find them all here.
