/ Problem

Originating Deals is a Multi-Billion-Dollar Pain

75% of M&A transactions are never closed successfully.

It takes on average 3-6 months to get a shortlist of interested parties.

85% of junior associates complain of the long hours demanded by the job.

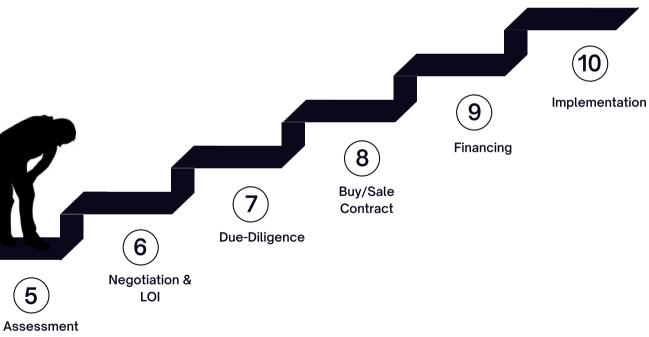

Junior associates turnover rate is 3x higher than that of other professions.

// Problem

99% of origination related activities are manual, subjective and don't rely on data

Middle market transactions generally require a minimum of 2-3 junior associates to do the heavy lifting and at least one senior partner overseeing the process.

Time Consuming

- Manual shortlisting takes weeks
- Hundreds of emails, calls, messages
- At least 50% of the time is dedicated to this
- Tedious, repetitive, frustrating activity

Expensive

- Hourly cost of junior/senior associates is really high
- Too many deals, limited resources
- Some opportunities are inevitably put aside
- Not closing just a single transaction costs millions

M&A processes just haven't caught up with the times and heavily underutilize technologies available to us today.

No Data

- No actionable insights, no basis to optimize process
- No big data/AI deployed
- No way to run simulations/probabilities of success
- Relying mostly on instinct and experience
