MESSAGE FROM THE PREMIER OF QUEENSLAND

Everyone deserves a life free from violence and abuse.

The Queensland Government is committed to putting a stop to domestic and family violence across Queensland, including in our LGBTIQ+ communities.

Earlier this month we held Australia's first virtual domestic and family violence summit to find real-life solutions to the systemic issues being amplified by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Everyone who contributed online, including representatives from peak bodies, service providers and my Government, shares the same unwavering commitment to Queenslanders who are experiencing domestic and family violence.

Our commitment is being expressed simply yet powerfully on LGBTI Domestic Violence Awareness Day on May 28.

I'm here for you – the Queensland Government is here for you. Through the domestic and family violence reform program we continue to strengthen our commitment to ending this type of violence in Queensland.

Queensland says: Not Now, Not Ever. Together.
