RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

My research has led me to work in Angola, Argentina, Botswana, Germany, Indonesia, Mozambique, Namibia, Portugal, Switzerland, South Africa, Great Britain, Sweden, and the US over the last decade.

- Ethiopia, Switzerland, U.S.A., Sweden: Decolonization, Cold War, and the Organization of African Unity: The creation of the African refugee regime in global perspective 1963-1990.

This book project is an intellectual history of Africa's regional refugee law. I have conducted archival research in Addis Ababa at the African Union's (AU) archives, at the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) archives and the Lutheran World Federation archives in Geneva, as well as the United Nations Archives in New York during 2019 and the Dag Hammarskjöld Archives in Uppsala in 2020.

- Angola, Germany, Mozambique, Portugal, South Africa: Dissertation Research. Between 2014 and 2015 I conducted 268 life history interviews with former workers, students, and government personal in Angola, Mozambique and Germany. These included individual and group interviews, semi-structured, structured and unstructured conversations, and the application of a survey to 251 people. In addition, I consulted the national archives and various ministerial archives across the five countries. As a spin off I produced a short film about the Mozambican workers together with filmmaker Jack Davis: "A Democratic Republic of the Mind." In addition, I published in relevant non-academic journals and gave interviews to Zimbabwean, Dutch and German press.
- Namibia & South Africa. Master's thesis research. In April 2010 I expanded my Bachelor research on the nexus between land rights, identity and development by including a comparative case of the Hai||om San in Outjo and Outjiwarongo in Namibia. I conducted interviews with community leaders and members, NGO workers, journalists and legal consultants in Windhoek and beyond. Further, I consulted documents at the Namibian national archives.
- South Africa: Bachelor thesis research. The thesis historically situates the †Khomani San land claims and traces the development, application, and appropriation of the Bushman myth and its power to define traditions. Over a period of three months in 2008 I conducted individual and group oral history interviews with the †Khomani community in Afrikaans and engaged in participant observation on their lands in the Green Kalahari. I consulted documents in the National Archives and the University of the Witwatersrand Archives in Johannesburg, and the Cape Town Archives. I went back to the community to discuss the research results in 2010.

Collaborative Research Projects:

- Argentina: In 2013 I spent five months in Buenos Aires at the regional office of the International Organization for Migration researching labor migration in South America for an internal report entitled "Putting Migrant Integration in South America On the Map," co-written with Elizabeth Warn, IOM.
- Angola with Professor Mariana Candido: In July 2011 we travelled around Angola to research local memories of the history of slavery, resulting in a book chapter. We consulted church archives in Luanda and various smaller locations in the provinces of Benguela, Huambo, Huila, and Namibe and examined museum's holdings in Luanda and Benguela. In addition, we conducted oral history interviews with village chiefs, villagers and museum personnel.
