

Dry Haze

The Year Without a Summer

Composed and realized by Werner Cee
Produced by Deutschlandradio Kultur 2013

Based on the poem „Darkness“ by Lord Byron (1816) Additional Texts: „Cloud Songs“ by Juna Robin (2010). List of Patents ref.
Geoengineering from the US Patent and Trademark Office.
Prologue by Benjamin Franklin (1784)

*»I had a dream, which was not all a dream.
The bright sun was extinguish'd, and the stars did wander darkling in the eternal space, rayless, and pathless, and the icy earth swung blind and blackening in the moonless air.«*
(Lord Byron)

It was the densest dry haze in Europe since the late middle ages and it was mainly in the troposphere. It consisted of sulphuric acid aerosols and its overall mass amounted to about 200 megatons. The year 1816 went down in history as the „year without a summer“.
The composition Dry Haze is the soundtrack to the shaded world, the twilight as it presented itself after big volcanic eruptions and might again be imminent if scientists' plans were put into practise.

with Rachel Unthank, Becky Unthank, Adrian McNally, Neville Tranter, Alf Terje Hana, Werner Cee

Audio CD. Duration 47.30 min wernercee.de wernercee@t-online.de

Dry Haze

The Year Without a Summer
werner cee

