ith special movement permits, animal rights activists also take care of stray dogs during police hours.

A black and white dog is shown from a low angle, leaning over a large pile of brown, round kibble on a light-colored paved surface. The dog's head is buried in the pile, and its front paws are visible on the pavement. The background features a clear blue sky, green trees, a utility pole, and a multi-story building with a sign that reads "KAYAPAZARI". A street lamp is also visible in the distance.

They left food and water for all stray dogs, and for those in need of health care, they also brought medicine.

"We ask everyone who has the opportunity and desire to help, to contact our association, to meet us at least these few days to accommodate the animals until we find a home for them,"

Activist Ivana Misheva appeals.

There is currently no city service in Skopje that cares for stray animals. How the city works while waiting for the new hospital to work and what are the challenges in the state of emergency, watch tomorrow's edition (Monday, April 27) on the show "360 degrees" on Alsat TV from 22:00.
