

Soundpainting in words

listening

interaction and communication

creation

participation

listening to others

improvisation

cooperation

action - reaction

listening to yourself and to what you produce listening to the sound output of a music group

the performers are on the same level

active participation in a creative process

stylistic freedom

group creation

creative expression

sharing

different roles

accompaniment

rhythm

solo

sound

development of one's own ideas in a short amount of time playing music with musicians of different

freedom of expression and interpretation

perform and compiling different music styles

composition

letting go in a creative process

give what you prefer

dialogue with others

do what you can respect for the ideas of others

expressing oneself

strengthening of self-confidence

memory training

roles can be easily and quickly exchanged

composition forms

harmony

equality

continuous attention
and concentration

expression, representation, and development of one's own infinite possibilities