SAINT HONEN PLAQUE RESTORED

Our Saint Honen plaque, which had adorned our temple since 1972, became rusty due to the salt air. The plaque was a commemorative gift from the Jodo Shu Headquarters to celebrate the 800th year since the founding of Jodo Shu by Saint Honen.

Recently, our neighbor, artist Lawrence LaValle beautifully restored our historic plaque just in time to celebrate the 850th year since the founding of Jodo Shu this coming year. Lawrence also kindly restored Bishop Kindo Hayashi's calligraphic plaque. Our sincere Mahalo to Lawrence for his professional services dedicated to our Mission!

IN APPRECIATION

As our membership declines in number year after year, we, as a temple have continued to face, many challenges. Though we are small in quantity, the quality of our membership remains strong.

A big Mahalo nui loa goes to our hardworking board members and officers – President Ed Sera and Vice President Lanny Daise for all their efforts in beautifying and maintaining the upkeep of our temple grounds and affairs, Secretary Valentina Stewart Watson for keeping accurate minutes and her legal advice, Treasurer Maya Hara, and all the members of the Board.

All this would not have been possible without the leadership of our past officers, President Donald Fujii, Secretary Jean Yoshimura, and Project Manager Yayoi Hara.

Last and not least, a big arigato to all of you, our members and friends, for your kokua throughout the years! May we humbly ask for your continued support!

Kasane mochi also known as kagami mochi are two pieces of round mochi stacked on top of each other and offered with a piece of konbu (seaweed) and a daidai (Japanese bitter orange, here in Hawaii we use a tangerine). This offering sits on a folded piece of paper that wards off fire from the house. Kasane literally means 'to stack one on top of another' representing the going and coming years, the sun and the moon, and yin and yang. Kagami, or mirror, represents the idea of reflecting upon ourselves. Daidai means "generation after generation" and symbolizes the continuation of family for generations. The konbu or kobu is a wordplay on yorokobu, meaning happiness. We offer this special kasane mochi at our temple or at home at New Year's in hopes to bring happiness for generations.
