HEALTH

Could tobacco cure coronavirus? Don't laugh.

The Pentagon's medical research arm credited the use of tobacco plants in 2012 for the quick development of 10 million doses of flu vaccine.

When Dr. Richard Tubb was appointed as Director of BAT in 2013 Richard Burrows, Chairman of BAT, commented:

“This appointment further demonstrates our commitment to putting science at the heart of our business and I am excited about the role Richard will play in the development of our strategy.”

CRIMINAL PRE-KNOWLEDGE / KRIMINELLES VORWISSEN

Dr. Richard Tubb gave the antidote against Anthrax on day 9/11 (11.09.2001)

3 WOCHEN ZU FRÜH / But, Anthrax showed up at 3 weeks later (04.10.2001)

Col. Dr. Richard Tubb: The thing at that moment I was most worried about was a biologic [attack]. In the unlikely but high-risk scenario, I thought there was little harm to be prophylaxing the staff with antibiotics. It seemed like almost science fiction. I gave everyone on the plane a week of Cipro. I hoped by the time they ran out, we'd have figured out the fog of war and know whether we needed to continue measures.

Brian Montgomery: I noticed that Dr. Tubb was walking and talking to each person. He'd lean over and whisper to each person, pat them on the shoulder, and he'd hand over a little envelope, like what the military uses to put pills in. He got to me and said, "Monty" — that was my nickname — "how do you feel?" I said, "Other than the obvious, physically, I feel fine." "You don't feel disoriented?" "Nope." Then he said, "Have you ever heard of Cipro? We don't know what might've been in that school, so we're just being careful." I asked him, "What's it used for?" He told me, "In case it's anthrax."

Methode 1 nach dem PR-Grundgesetz „Stets das Narrativ beherrschen“:
Selber veröffentlichen, was mittlerweile durchgesickert ist – sowie die Sache an sich verharmlosen („little harm“) und Ursprung verschweigen

Methode 2 nach dem PR-Grundgesetz „Stets das Narrativ beherrschen“:
Plausible Deniability – Denkbare Abstreitmöglichkeiten schaffen, hier: Das ist schon eine alte Zeitungsmeldung, die wir selbst veröffentlicht haben; also kein Grund zur Aufregung (Enthüllung)

Col. Dr. Richard Tubb: As we're coming in on final [approach], Dan Bartlett comes into my office and says, "Thanks, I took all those pills. Anything else I need?" I said, "What?!" Absolutely not! That was supposed to be a week's worth!" I'm flipping through the Physician's Desk Reference, that huge book, trying to figure out what the toxic level of Cipro is.

Brian Montgomery: [Dan] was real worried for a moment. After all that happened that day, Dan was going to die from Cipro poisoning.

Col. Dr. Richard Tubb: I looked into it and told him, "Listen, you're going to be fine. You might want to take an antacid."
